Nine Year Old Girl Missing 40 Hours Found Murdered

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Some people find their mental outlet in a sense of humor. Others in being cynical.

The result of the whole thing is that those who have a sense of humor that is really developed, are termed "silly."

And those who pretend to be cynical are termed "crabs."

Real cynics are scarce and far between. A majority really believe in the things they cast their most cynical remarks at.

Oh, yes, it is quite the thing to pretend that one is wise, sophisticated, cynical and what have you.

But it all wears off in time.

One of the greatest dangers in driving a car is that of falling asleep at the wheel.

This statement seems silly to some of you drivers, but watch some of your motorists at early hours in the morning.

Sunday morning a driver sat asleep at the wheel of his car which was tearing down San Pablo avenue at 30 miles an hour.

A passing motorist drove alongside of this car at the risk of his life and honked his horn until the sleeper awoke.

Early Sunday morning, another driver fell asleep at the wheel of his car—but the results weren't so happy.

The driver's coupe was making at least 45 miles an hour.

His car swerved across the state highway and crashed into a tree.

The driver and his woman companion were badly cut up, and the car was completely wrecked.

The best advice to motorists who become sleepy at the wheel is: Stop your car on the side of the road and go to sleep until you feel better.

Driving a car when you are not feeling physically fit is not only a risk to your own life, but also to hundreds of other motorists.

COUNCIL IN TIE VOTE ON PROJECT

After an evening spent in discussion, the plan to install electroluxes on Tenth street, from Lucas avenue to Cutting Boulevard, was put in the discard by the city council last night.

A motion to instruct the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for the work, was lost by a tie vote of four to four.

The vote on the motion was as follows: Ayes—Hinkley, Meyer, Johnson, Hartnett, Noes—Scott, Penner, Imbach, Paulsen. Councilman Mattie Chandler was absent.

New Plan
It is likely the electroluxes will come before the council in the future in a new form, but it will not include the district from Lucas to Ripley, nor the district from Ohio to Cutting, as the property owners in those sections are strongly opposed to the proposed improvement.

It is likely the new petition will take in the district on Tenth street, from Ripley to the Santa Fe tracks.

Grant L. Miner and P. M. Black, owners of property on Tenth street, north of Ripley, asked that the electroluxes be installed, but there was only 332 feet signed up, as against a protest of 653 feet.

Protest Lodged

R. H. Curry, who lives south of Ohio, strongly objected to the improvement, claiming that streets and sewers were needed more.

Dr. Francis Kent Wins Honors In Motorboat Race

Dr. Francis Kent, well known sportsman of Richmond, returned to the bay area Sunday night the proud possessor of a silver cup awarded to him as winner of a 25 mile outboard motor boat race at Sacramento Sunday afternoon.

The race was sponsored by the Capital City Boat Club of Sacramento. A number of professionals were also included in the competition, although not competing with the amateurs, but Kent finished ahead of the entire field. Kent made the race in his boat, the Lur Alyse II. The boats averaged 25 miles per hour.

Dr. Kent has entered in a three day event at Stockton, starting Memorial day. Kent also intends to participate in races at Isleton the following week-end.

Plans are being made to secure the northern California tryouts for the Richmond inner harbor. The participants in the Pacific coast championship races in Oakland on Sept. 9 will be selected in the northern California tryouts. The Oakland titlist will then compete in the national championship races at Peoria, Ill.

Class B competition at Sunday's regatta was won by H. Perry Smith in his "Buster II," followed by Harry Arnold's "Flying Cloud" and Loyal Ossa's "Go Cat II."

Bud Speegle and his "Bud III" captured the Class C race, with Harry Arnold second in his "Flying Cloud" and E. O. Gulshan third in "Sez-U."

In Class D, G. C. Henry's "Winkie" zoomed to the forefront, followed by the "Miss Gostine" of Manuel Azevedo, and the "Buster IV" of R. B. Jeffries.

Dr. Francis Kent of Richmond then came in for first place with his "Lur Alyse" in the 25 mile runabout race with a time of 2:40 minutes. The boat was driven by Joe Banst. Bud Speegle's "Go'den Comet" finished second, while "Miss S. S. F." driven by Everett Hart, took third position. The "Elly Boy," owned by J. De Silva, followed in fourth place, and Ray S. E. Marshall, and George Lauritzen.

NATIVE SONS WIN FAST CONTEST

The fine art of run collecting was just so many cracked bats to the Mechanics Bank nine yesterday afternoon when they succumbed by a score of 12 to 0 to the consistent battering of the heavy hitting of the Native Sons of the Richmond City Twilight league.

The Native Sons' victory was in a great part due to the tricky chucking of "Berty" DeBaere, who allowed but one hit in yesterday's hectic clash. DeBaere was supported by a wide-awake fielding squad, who also performed in first class fashion at the home plate. The Native Sons garnered 14 hits at opportune moments with disastrous results for the Mechanics Bank aggregation.

Leslie Marcus, starting in the box for the Bankers, was nicked for 8 hits. Marcus was replaced near the end of the fourth inning by Joe Bono, who allowed four more counts.

The Native Sons started the one sided contest when Viano came home for the first run of the game. The Sons bunched their hits in the third, with the result that Viano, McCall, Prolo, and DeBaere crossed the home plate. Viano, McCall, Prolo, Gray, Harrison and Salmon added six more counts to the rapidly growing Native Sons' total in the fourth. Gray made the last score of the game in the fifth inning.

The Odd Fellows and the firemen are scheduled to furnish the action in tonight's Richmond City Twilight league baseball on the Richmond union high school diamond. Both the lodgement and the fire fighters have won their first games of the league season, and local fans may expect some hard playing at the high school site this afternoon at 8:15 o'clock.

Corey Nine Defeated By Kelly Team

Holding the balance in a 3 to 0 score at the beginning of the ninth, the Corey Garage nine were preparing to spin a tale of victory when they entered their households last Sunday afternoon after their battle with the Kelly All-Stars.

When the stands started emptying at the end of the game, the Kelly warriors were thinking up expressions to use when narrating their 5 to 4 victory over the Corey aggregation to the home folks.

The Coreys are still wondering what happened in that first half of the ninth inning, when the Kelly outfit chased in five runs. The crack of hickory hitting leather echoed throughout the entire first half of the ninth period.

ODD FELLOWS BEAT ELKS NINE

Sunday was a big day on the first street diamond for the Odd Fellows of Richmond, but a mighty disappointing one for the Richmond Elks who lost to the three linkers by a score of 10 to 1.

The main reason for the Elks' defeat was the failure of a number of their players to turn up for action. Substitute players filled the vacancies with not exceptional results.

The second reason for the Elks' defeat was the high standard of baseball craftsmanship shown by the Odd Fellows.

Kamb pitched for the Odd Fellows whiffing eight Elks and walking one. Babich substituted later in the game, and fanned one swatter and walked three. Rosano received for the Odd Fellows. Perricone twirled for the Elks, fanning nine Odd Fellows and walking six. Jensen caught for the Elks.

Burned Will Held Valid In Court

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 12.—UP—A will which was burned up almost immediately after being found, was allowed by Judge Ellis L. Yattman in probate court here recently.

The will was that of Joseph E. Loughlin, of Providence, who died last January.

Mrs. Sarah E. Doyle, sister of the deceased and administratrix of his estate, told the court under oath that she found the document dated 1898, among her brother's possessions a few days after his death.

Under its terms, she said, Loughlin left his estate to his mother, during her lifetime. Since the mother died, Mrs. Doyle testified, she believed the will worthless and threw it into the fire.

An alternative provision of the document, as remembered by Mrs. Doyle, and allowed by the judge, leaves Mrs. Doyle three quarters of the estate. Another sister, Mrs. Mary E. Bailey, receives the remainder.

BUY or BUILD A HOME... with the aid of a bank loan

President Hoover recently said: "The maintenance of home building at a high rate contributes greatly to active and stable business conditions. Of deeper importance, more families are enabled to achieve the independence, security and greater return from life which go with home ownership."

First mortgage loans on real estate made by this bank have helped thousands on the way to home ownership. Bank loans are universally accepted as the most desirable means of financing the purchase of a home on reasonable terms.

If you are planning to buy or build a home or if your present loan is on a basis that would make it eligible as a bank loan, the American Trust Company is ready to aid you with financial assistance, friendly counsel and hearty co-operation.

JANET GAYNOR
CHARLES FARRELL

"HIGH SOCIETY BLUES"

Another charming Wm. Fox musical romance... with William Collier, Sr., Hedda Hopper, Lucien Littlefield and Louise Fazenda!

Buy Fox West Coast Scrip

JANET GAYNOR WINS PRAISE IN PLAY

Janet Gaynor, dainty little audible screen favorite, comes closer to playing "herself" in her role as Eleanor Divine in "High Society Blues" Fox Movietone musical romance, in which she is co-starred with Charles Farrell, than in any other picture she has ever made.

As the daughter of Horace Divine, enacted by William Collier, Sr., multi-millionaire, she lives in luxury and associates with the best society; at the same time she is a distinct personality without a trace of high hat, commonly found in such rarified atmosphere.

And Eleanor, just as Janet in real life, prefers simple pleasures and activities to the more elaborate functions, characteristic of wealth.

Although ranking as reigning princess of Hollywood society, Miss Gaynor seldom exercises her royal prerogatives. Rather, she seeks to avoid formal social affairs.

She lives simply in her Beverly Hills home or at her beach cottage in Santa Monica. She might easily have an elaborate beach home at exclusive Malibu, the Gold Coast of Hollywood. Instead she prefers a simple, five-roomed cottage.

"My good friends—the ones I care for—don't mind where I live. They know they are welcome any time they want to come. But the flirts and triflers stay away, as there is nothing here to attract them," Miss Gaynor explained.

"I value time too highly to waste it on people whose sole aim in life is to have a good time. If I lived at some fashionable place I would be constantly entertaining and being entertained. Not that I do not like parties for I do, occasionally. But I do want some time to myself to read and swim and play tennis and just lay in the sand and dream and dream. I find the best way to do it is to be far from the crowd.

"It is a real effort for people to come and see me now, and I feel that those who take the trouble, do so because they really like me."

In addition to Farrell, others prominent in the cost of "High Society Blues" which comes to the Fox-California theater today and tomorrow, include William Collier, Sr., Joyce Compton, Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda, Lucien Littlefield and Brandon Hurst.

He, is survived by two sons, James Jr. and Richard of Richmond, and a mother and two sisters in San Francisco.

Death Takes James Demings

News of the death of James Demings, former Richmond resident in San Francisco Saturday, was learned here yesterday. Funeral services will be held in San Francisco today.

Demings was connected in the feed and grain business while residing in Richmond, and was a member of the Richmond Elks and Carquinez nation, Native Sons. At the time of his death he was employed by the Bay Cities Transportation company.

He, is survived by two sons, James Jr. and Richard of Richmond, and a mother and two sisters in San Francisco.

MOTOR SCOUT VISITS FISH GROUNDS

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Returning from a survey of fishing conditions in the Bishop country, "Outdoor" Franklin, Richfield road scout, was enthusiastic in his report over present and future prospects.

Throughout the entire district the planting has been extremely heavy, and full crops are much in evidence, Franklin stated. Franklin, who has been identified with the motor car industry for years as road scout, hunting and fishing authority and the motorists' friend, is now associated with the Richfield Oil company in the same capacity.

In his new position, Franklin, who has ridden nearly a million miles up and down and across the entire West gathering information for dissemination to the motor car owners, will continue this work which has proved so helpful to the tourist, camper and sportsman.

The Richfield Oil company, with its progressive service to motorists, will continue the gathering of news of interest. This will supplement the map service which has been of aid to thousands of motorists for several years. These maps are distributed throughout the entire west at Richfield stations.

"Outdoor" Franklin will assist vacationists to plan their trips as to place, how to get there and what to take for the most comfort and compactness. Franklin's car is a model of convenience and while the average motorist might not care to go to such elaborate preparations, he can secure valuable hints as to the proper equipment for the average outing.

"The first streak of dawn, May 1st, found hundreds of sportsmen on their favorite water, eager to tempt the speckled beauties to the creel," said "Outdoor" Franklin on his return.

"Owing to the nearness of the local streams and lakes, these were somewhat overcrowded, with the result that very few limits were taken; those fortunate enough to have chosen the Bishop country for the initial trial were amply repaid for the extra mileage. There is still plenty of snow on the higher levels, which must melt off before the streams are at their best. The lake fishing, however, is good but no doubt will improve as the season advances.

"Trailing and still fishing have so far brought the best results as the fish are in deep water on account of the coldness of the water. June, Silver and Grant lakes just now seem to be the best bets with Convict lake a close second, while Hot creek and the Owens river are both excellent."

18 INJURED IN TRAIN-TRAM ACCIDENT

OAKLAND, May 12.—UP—Eighteen persons were badly cut and bruised when a Western Pacific train struck and derailed an Oakland street car here today.

The streetcar, crowded with people going to work, was struck broadside by the locomotive which was moving at a fairly slow speed, and was hurled from the track, badly wrecked, after being shoved 60 feet by the train.

Passengers and members of the train crew aided in extricating the screaming passengers from the wreckage of the car, and hastily summoned ambulances and private cars stood by to take the injured to various eastbay hospitals.

According to C. R. Jones, the motorman of the car—operated by one man—he had come to a stop at the corner. Seeing that the warning signal was not set at the "red" or danger light, he started the car across the tracks.

The signal must have changed, just as the car started, he said, for the moment the middle of the track was reached, the train bore down on the car. Although Jones attempted to put on full power, he said it was too late to avoid the collision.

The train, a Western Pacific No. 3, from Salt Lake, was driven by engineer H. L. Davis, who said he had seen the trolley too late to halt the heavy train.

The injured, all of whom were residents of San Francisco, Oakland and Alameda, are expected to recover.

Film Fads and Hoibles

Nothing alike under the sun? You haven't seen the Sisters G then!

They are playing in Paul Whitehead's starring vehicle The King of Jazz, and are as alike as two peas in a pod.

Hair clothes, eyes, accent—they are repeating duplicates of the other.

A fad with us—this business of looking alike? We couldn't help it! But as for the way we dress—that is different, but yet no fad. We just like the same sort of things.

We read the same books, like the same people, go the same places—all because our tastes are so similar. But no, no, it is not a fad with us.

The Sisters G were born in Berlin, Germany, not many years ago. Only six months ago they were imported to Hollywood for The King of Jazz. Of course they have a name but it was one of those hard-to-pronounce old aristocratic German names—so an enterprising press agent hit on the idea of Sisters G. Then, too—their parents in Germany felt a great pride in the name of "G"—it has been their pride for generations.

More than just looking alike—they are inseparable companions. Whether on the set, on the boulevard or lunching at the Montmartre.

"We don't go many places," they explained, "because we don't know many people."

Not long ago they were at a social gathering in Hollywood. After paying their respects to the hostess, looked around and said: "Vell we don't know anybody here, guess we go home." And go home they did!

They chatter "dutch" lickerly brindle, but in spare moments are learning to speak the English language.

"We have the same reactions towards food," and laughed when they told of an incident in The Brown Derby. A tray of French pastry was ordered by their escort. Having been deprived of all delicacies during past war days—they didn't know french pastry could be eaten with the fingers. They looked at the tempting array—looked at their fingers—looked at the tray of food and said "nine."

The Sisters G do a number of routines in The King of Jazz—but always together. Their dances are unusual and have a decided continental atmosphere about them. With perfect harmony they take their high kicks, their spins and back bends—until one looks like the other's shadow on the wall.

Though the Sisters G say this business of looking alike is no fad—because it is—they are well on the way to be one of Hollywood's greatest favorites.

DRY BOARD TO FACE LOBBY PROBE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—UP—Anti-saloon league officials demonstrated the close connection between prohibition and politics today in four contacts with congress.

Bishop James Cannon Jr., in a telegram from Dallas, Texas, where he is facing charges of stock speculation, assumed responsibility for an unaccounted for $48,000 contributed in 1928 to his anti-Smith campaign in Virginia, and argued the corrupt practices law does not require a report on such expenditures. The lobby committee will look into that.

E. H. Cherrington, another official of the league, in a statement under the name of the World League Against Alcoholism, defended "lobbying" again, and said the supreme court repeatedly has charged the liquor traffic with being the source of "crime, vice and degradation."

Land Roberts

State Superintendent Homer W. Tope, of Pennsylvania, anti-saloon league in a telegram to Senator Reed, Rep., Pa., expressed hearty approval of the appointment of Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia to the supreme court. This is believed to insure that there will be little, if any, organized opposition from the dry senate majority, despite Roberts' known views against the insertion of prohibition into the constitution.

Then the senate lobby committee's questioning of National League tee, which tomorrow will resume Superintendent McBride, on his admitted lobbying activities, summoned Miss Ada L. Burroughs, of Richmond, Va., to find out what she knows about the financial activities of Bishop Cannon's anti-Smith organization.

Said Puzzling

Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee, who summoned Miss Burroughs, said he found Cannon's telegram "difficult to interpret."

She was called on suggestion of Louis Powell, Richmond anti-saloon league leader, who denied he was treasurer.

Caraway's puzzlement arose due to the fact that Cannon, in February 1929, reported to the clerk of the House, under the corrupt practices act, the receipt of $17,300 for the total of $65,300 which E. C. Jameson, New York financier, testified he gave to Cannon for his fight against Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Cannon's telegram to Caraway said:

"Virginia advises indicate you inquiring concerning Treasurer of Virginia Anti-Smith Democrats. I personally received and disbursed practically all funds Virginia anti-Smith democrats 1928, but made no report of such receipts and disbursements, as none required by law."

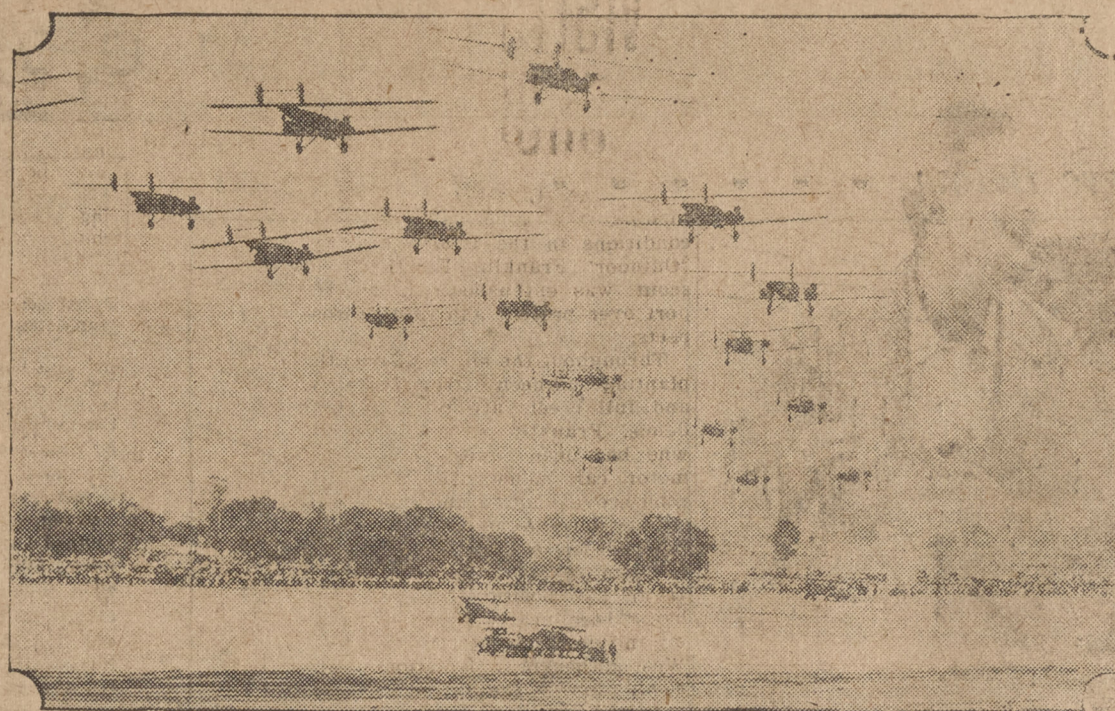

Will Appear

"Retreat conflict with general conference (of the Methodist Church South), session, but as explained before official administration and personal character of all bishops reviewed and passed on quarennially, and as charges have been brought against me, I must remain to meet the charges."

"Likewise work of our board for the past four years must be reviewed and plans adopted for coming quarennium, also matter of assignment of bishops for future work must be determined. To leave before adjournment not simply confusing, but would seriously interfere with proper settlement of these important matters. Upon adjournment will return Washington, appearing at convenience of committee."

It is expected Cannon will appear late this month before the committee.

STEADY RISE IN AUBURN SALES

AUBURN, Ind., May 12.—Auburn was one of the few companies in the industry to show a gain for the first three months of 1930 over the same period last year according to E. L. Cord, president.

Growth of Auburn from one of the lesser automobile companies to leadership in the industry in five years' time is one of the outstanding achievements of the automotive world. Practically unknown in 1924 the company is now looked on from a financial, engineering, and management standpoint, as one of the strongest in the industry. Its pioneering of the straight-eight automobile, which has now been adopted by a large number of other companies, and its making available to the public the advantages of the front drive car, are evidence of this leadership.

In 1924 production of the company was slightly over 2000 cars annually and built in a small plant at Auburn. Today the company has more than 140 acres of factory space, with plants in five cities, controls one of the largest engine companies in the world and has production capacity of 400 cars daily. Payrolls of the company have risen from 200 in 1924 to more than 12,000 in 1930.

A recent survey by the factory shows that Auburn dealers average less than two new cars on hand and only an average of four used cars on their floors.

Mexican Flier Body En Route To Mexico City

PUERTO LIMON, Costa Rica, May 12.—UP—A special train left here today for San Jose, carrying the body of Col. Pablo Sidar, young Mexican flier killed yesterday when his plane crashed into the sea less than 12 hours after he started on a non-stop flight to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The body was accompanied by the Mexican minister to Costa Rica, Mediz Bolio, who arrived to take charge of final rites and honors.

The mystery of the crash probably never will be solved. Whether the electrical storm and torrential rains caused the monoplane "Morelos" to dive into the sea as the fliers sought to land on the beach about three miles from Puerto Limon, or whether engine trouble forced them down, none can know.

Lieut. Carlos Rivasora's body had not been recovered. It was assumed he had leaped from the plane when it became evident a crash was inevitable. If so, fears were expressed here the body never would be recovered, the sea in this vicinity being full of sharks.

The body of Colonel Sidar was found jammed in the tail of the wrecked plane. It was believed Lieutenant Rivasora was piloting the machine at the time of the accident. It struck near shore and parts of the plane were found buried deep in the sand.

DEATH HALTS FLIER'S MARRIAGE

SAN DIEGO, May 12.—UP—A brief romance between the 15-year-old daughter of former President E. Plutarco Calles of Mexico and Col. Pablo Sidar, Mexican flier, came to a tragic ending with the death of the aviator on an ocean flight.

It was learned today that Col. Sidar and Atemisla Calles were to have been married at the conclusion of the flight on which the handsome young ace perished.

They met here recently when Col. Sidar came to southern California to accept delivery of the Morales, his 41 fated plane. He was a guest at the home of the Mexican consul here, E. Ferreria, who is the husband of Miss Calles' aunt, Miss Calles is attending the academy of Our Lady of Peace, here.

Palm Reader Aids Mate To Get Divorce

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—UP—When Curtis P. Davis married Betty Mae Davis, fortune telling suffered a blow, he testified in superior court today when he obtained a divorce.

It seems that the girl, who became Mrs. Betty Mae Davis, visited a palm reader and was told that she would marry a man with two children, but that her happiness would be short lived, because he would be killed by a train.

She met Davis, father of two children, and married him. One point for the palmist. Their happiness was short lived, because they separated after 18 months. Point two for the palmist.

"Then she wrote and said that she hoped I would be killed by a railroad train, as the fortune teller said," Davis testified. The fortune teller lost that point.

Don't Take Pills For Constipation

Ordinary pills taken to relieve constipation merely force a movement of the bowels without making the liver discharge its excess bile. That's why the trouble returns in a day or two and you have to swallow more pills. What every constipated person needs is a good liver tonic like Plantax to thoroughly cleanse the digestive system of all food secretions and at the same time restore the torpid, lazy liver to proper working order. When this is done you will no longer have frequent headaches, coated tongue, yellow skin, sour stomach, gas, bilious attacks or other symptoms of constipation and liver trouble.

Plantax is made from the juices of harmless medicinal plants—Nature's own remedies—that act in a mild, easy way without "waking up" irritating the organs. Try it tonight. Large bottle $1 at any good drug store.

CITY DISCARDS ELECTROLIER PROJECT

P. M. Sanford urged the improvement, claiming it was a community project, and would benefit the city as a whole. He stated he had $100,000 worth of property on Tenth street, and it was the principal cross street of the city. He also said that the businessmen of the city were in favor of the project.

Captain H. P. Lauritzen was asked his opinion of the proposed improvement. He stated he did not intend to take part in the discussion, but it was his opinion that no attempt to force the electroliers on the property owners south of Ohio street. "What we need is the improvement of that street. As it is at the present time, it is nothing but an alley, and in winter it is under water, and people are unable to travel on it. There is no reason why the property owners south of Ohio should pay for the benefit of the property owners up Tenth street. That street was all right until Twenty-third street was discovered. What is the use of paying for lights to try and get people up town when the lights would be on."

Project Landed. The petition for the electroliers called for between Lucas and Cutting on Tenth street, but City Attorney T. M. Carlson informed the council it could take what action it saw fit, so far as dividing up the district.

Hartnett thought the proposed improvement was really a community project, but it did not seem that certain sections strongly opposed, should be taken in against their will.

Much discussion followed, and to get the matter before the council for action, he made a motion that the engineer prepare plans and specifications for the work from Lucas to Cutting. Councilman Russell Meyer seconded the motion.

Then came the roll call, with the result as previously stated. Scott, in voting "no" said that in view of the protests, he could not consistently vote in the affirmative. It was his opinion that Ripley to Lucas, and Ohio to Cutting should be eliminated.

Fenner Votes No. Councilman Meyer voted "yes" and explained it by saying the project should go through as a whole and not piecemeal, leaving dark ends.

Councilman Fenner voted "no" and said the protests of 1625 feet with but 425 feet favorable meant something to him.

Councilman George F. Imbach also voted "no". He explained his vote by saying the council were there to represent the property owners, and as there were a large number who protested, he thought further time should be given the matter.

Paulsen Votes No. Mayor A. L. Paulsen's vote was also in the negative. He thought the electrolier would be a fine improvement, but did not believe in taking in those sections, where property owners strongly oppose the move.

Councilman Walter Johnson voted "aye" by saying it was his opinion that if the project was to go through, it should be as petitioned for.

Councilmen A. B. Hinkley and J. N. Hartnett also voted "aye".

Lavine's Second Trial Set For June 23 In L. A.

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—UP—Maurice Lavine and Miss Leone Jackson, will go to trial for a second time here on June 23, on charges that they attempted to extort money by threatening to name prominent local men in newspaper articles concerning the collapse of the Julian Petroleum corporation collapse.

Meanwhile district attorney's investigators were attempting to learn the identity of the man who assertedly signed to the jury in the court room during the trial. The jury stood 11 for conviction and one for acquittal when dismissed.

In another department, S. C. Lewis, former president of the company had his trial on charges of bribing a jury delayed. He demanded an open hearing on his affidavit of prejudice filed against Judge Emmett Wilson. The hearing was set for Monday. Lewis assertedly conspired to bribe a juror at his trial on a charge of being responsible for the Julian crash.

Change furnace drudgery into automatic, care-free heating

Use your present furnace

HERE is automatic, care-free heating which actually costs less than heating which requires constant watching at the furnace door!

You can thank Natural Gas for that.

And Natural Gas can be used in your present furnace to supply this automatic, care-free heating. The change-over is easy and very inexpensive. We merely install the new "Conversion Burner" in the firebox.

Then you can fire your furnace from your easy chair—you simply move a tiny lever on the Thermostat which we mount on the wall of your living-room. The Thermostat controls the furnace far better than a janitor could if he watched beside the furnace day and night. This Thermostat automatically keeps your home at a steady, even temperature. You stop the furnace by moving this same tiny lever.

Healthful and Safe

When you install the "Conversion Burner," you substitute clean Natural Gas for your present fuel. The Natural Gas burns inside the steel firebox. All products of combustion go outdoors through a chimney just as the smoke does from your present fire. The pure, warm air which heats your home does not come in contact with the burning gas. It passes around the hot outsides of the steel firebox.

With this tiny lever you start and stop the furnace and regulate the temperature.

It is Clean

With the "Conversion Burner," your curtains, your wall-paper, and your furniture retain their fresh cleanliness. Dirt and soot are unknown.

Many Satisfied Users

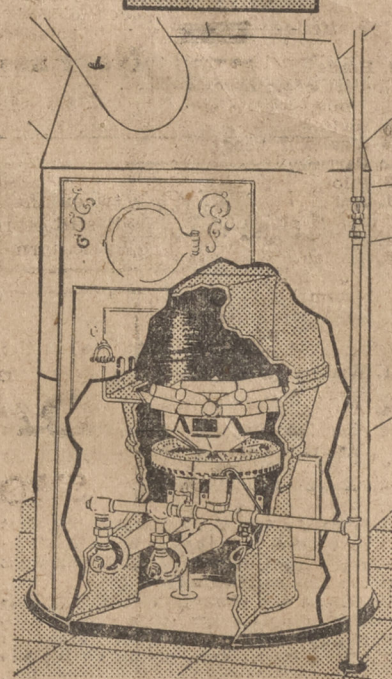

Over two thousand "Conversion Burners" are in use at the present time. A careful check of these burners was made and they were found to be operating entirely satisfactorily. The people who are using them are more than pleased with the clean, care-free heating. Especially are they pleased with the low operating cost.

We inspect Your Heating Plant. Before the Pacific Gas and Electric Company installs a "Conversion Burner" in your furnace or boiler, we test and make a very careful inspection of your heating plant.

This is Ideal Heating

The "Conversion Burner" makes living easier. Mother won't have to fire the furnace when father is away. Guests will always be warm and comfortable. No one need interrupt a party to fire the furnace. Your home is more healthful—there is no over-heating, no under-heating.

For a demonstration of the "Conversion Burner," call at our office, or telephone and a representative will give you full details.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Moores Marshall

THE SCAPEGRACE SEX

LORD BIRKENHEAD has just prophesied that, within a comparatively short time, babies will be born from bottles. If he is right, another blow will be struck against the indispensability of women.

They still are needed, at present, to produce the children—

Although cynical men argue that women really aren't necessary for anything else—
Since men cook the best dinners,
Men do all the big, important jobs and, in addition,
Men do so-called women's work
Better than women do it (Remember, we're not saying this—
But what woman hasn't heard some mean man say it?)
However, we rise to-day to reassure our sex
That, even if the newest variety of bottle babies does
come to pass,
Yet men will still be unable to get along without
women.

Because men simply MUST have a sex to blame
When anything goes wrong!
If you doubt it—not that you do, assuming you to be an intelligent woman—

We submit as proof two simple little headlines from one day's news:
Here's the first—"Farm Ills Laid to Dieting."
Here's the second—"How Short Skirts Hurt the Textile Market."
Women, in short, are to blame for the farm relief problem.
Women also are to blame for a large-sized business depression—
That's all!

To give you the damning details,
Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture,
suggests to the Chicago Commercial Club

"That widespread dieting is in part
responsible for the troubles of the farmers."

They might have got real money for their wheat and potatoes and butter
if American women, contrary creatures,
had not decided

To stay slender, healthy and young Instead of eating themselves into overweight

Just for the sake of the poor dear
farmers!

Then, again, here's Charles G. Wood,
author of "Reds and Lost Wages."
Pointing out that the popular short skirt—

STILL popular with most women, for
most of the time—
Has marred the prosperity of the entire textile industry of the country,
And resulted in the misery of hundreds of thousands of textile operatives.

"Overnight," asserts Mr. Wood,
"women shook over eight yards of
cotton fabrics from their bodies,
"And the spindleage of the country
was based on a woman wearing that
quantity of cloth—"

"There was the chemise, camisole,
petticoat—one to half a dozen—"
"And the garment spoken of in polite
society as 'unmentionable.'"

So, because women were sensible
enough
To free themselves of this unwieldy
bulk of clothing—

To make themselves prettier, more active, more comfortable than ever before—

They're to blame for the closing down
of mills and the loss of prosperity
to owners and workmen.

Now, it certainly seems innocent
enough
That women should want to eat and dress more wisely than in the past—

When doctors and other reformers
blamed them for NOT eating and dressing wisely!

But, where women are concerned, if
it isn't one thing men blame them
for, it's another—

Curs is the scapegrace sex, and we
may as well make up our minds
to it!

Anyhow, it proves that, whatever happens, women always will be good for something.

We mean, of course, for taking the blame!

FOOLS

When my single friends come 'round,

Run my lot down to the ground.
Say I simply waste away my useless
life—

I would heed their arguments
If I felt that they made sense,
But I think each one would like to be a wife!

Though they roast me 'cause I cook,
Seems to me they always look
For a man who'll deign to let them
cook for him!

All their good times seem so flat,
Simply marking time, so that They can do the things I do, with half my vim!

They can talk a lot, it's true,
And present the modern view,
But their actions do belie their speech, I'll say!

For they grab a man with glee,
Just to be a fool like me!
What's the sense in roasting others,
then, I pray?

ASK DAD—HE KNOWS!

At an affair in London, during the Naval Conference, attended by Ramsay MacDonald and his daughter Isabel, David Lloyd George and his daughter Megan, Dwight W. Morrow
and his daughter Elizabeth, there was launched, according to Mrs. Morrow,
a pact "against the tyranny of the daughters."

But here, we take it, is just one more case where the victims
of tyranny hug their chains!

SODOM AND GOMORRAH AGAIN

THE ruins of Sodom and Gomorrah have just been discovered in the Valley of the Jordan, according to a London cable despatch.
Sodom and Gomorrah were the wickedest cities in the world, which sets Chicago back in third place. Because this discovery will arouse fresh interest in those two municipalities, we are digging up some new dirt on Sodom and Gomorrah that every school kiddie should know.

Back up your tin cart and get a load of the unexpurgated facts.
Sodom was founded in 2369 B. C.
On account of its location at the intersection of two prominent deserts, it grew very fast. In 2340 B. C. it had a population of 92,000 and the census
takers probably overlooked a bunch of people at that.

Gomorrah, though settled later, also grew very rapidly. Along in 2350 B. C. the chariot business began to expand, Gomorrah was the seat of this industry and when Ikkar Bin started making a popular priced chariot on a mass
production scale, the city increased by leaps and bounds.

It wasn't long before both cities
got a reputation for wickedness. The smart set of Sodom and Gomorrah
did the classical dances of their grand
daddies too, so they developed a lewder
and more bawdy dance that came to be known as the Sodomite. Then gradually the Sodomite girls went in for
scantier dress and before the reformers
could do anything about it, they were going around in the bare breast-
plates only half an inch thick and their gowns would consist of as little as 2,000 or 3,000 beads.

Over in Gomorrah morals were breaking down, too. When the wine bazaars closed at sundown the Gomorrah fast set insisted on keeping
things whooped up for the night.
Soon it was the custom, not only for men, but for girls, to pour a pint of wine into a goatskin gourd, which was fastened to the hip by a silk cord.

The River Jordan Anti-Saloon and Improvement League tried to put a stop to this, but Gomorrah's fast set laughed at them and continued sip-ping wine. So the Anti-Saloon League got a law passed making the River Jordan the official drink. But as wine at that time was the Go-

morrahites, they refused to patronize
the Jordan except for a bath.

Then the Gomorrah Evening Sentinel (Rep.) organized a straw ballot
Sodom branch of picture painters
on the matter. Out of 32,000 ballots
cast, 1,257 favored strict enforcement, 11,290 were for wine, and 19,493
wanted the River Jordan dried up.

The Anti-Saloon League immediately
claimed this was not a fair test of public opinion, as those who voted for drying up the River Jordan did
so as a rebuke to the Power Trust.

Meanwhile the Sodom Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Morals
warned the local residents they had better cut out wine, women and everything but church hymns. Will Hezz, who gundred the morals of the Sodom branch of picture painters
warned them to pipe down on spicy
murels and forbade the Sculptors' Union
to chisel any hieroglyphics on
stone that would corrupt the kiddies' minds.

All that both uplift leagues got for their trouble was a raucous horse
laugh. Both Sodom and Gomorrah
kept on being wicked, drinking wine
and often dancing till the moon came
out. The reformers warned them
something terrible would happen.

Then one day a cyclone struck both
towns, playing Sodom for the matinee
and Gomorrah at night and practically wiped them out. The uplift leagues gathered on a nearby mountain top and chipped, "Didn't we tell you so!" Then they voted to transfer their headquarters to the New World, and unless America quite supporting nullification it can expect a
first-class earthquake or a smallpox
plague any day now.

How to Assemble the Smart Ensemble Fabrics and Colors That Combine

A Guide That Makes It Easy
for a Woman to Select
Every Part of Her Costume

The Combination Must Be
Right and the Ensemble
Idea Must Be Complete

Then, for this spring of 1930, these are some of the ensemble combinations that you can depend upon as being good. (I will leave you to spot
the bad ones for yourself.)

Where the Pink Spots In

THE pink on this ensemble, as illustrated, scatters its accents in this wise: Pink
tucked handkerchief, linen vest,
under the frock's bolero jacket—pink
undersleeves done in the same manner. Pink pearls. Pink flower trimming for the wide brimmed straw
hat. Pink crystal trimmings for the black bag. And skin toned stockings, with pinky beige gloves. That is all
—just enough to make the pinky
brightness count as an accent, and to brand the ensemble as up to the minute in style.

Bright Navy With Pink
TO illustrate the perfect season's ensemble I have used for sketching on this page that high fashion, bright navy blue with pink.

The colors themselves are most important as are also their composition for the picture.

The blue is a high, bright shade
but not too startling. It can best be described as a bright navy—a color
that is flattering to many types. Then the pink, you must remember, is not
that modest, retiring flesh color pink.

PINK PEARL BEADS LONG ENOUGH TO CONFORM WITH
THE NECKLINE OF THE DRESS
(UPPER RIGHT) AND GLOVES
IN A PINKY BEIGE.

It is not so formidable a thing
when you get the idea, or continuity
of design is something that almost takes care of itself once it has a start. But to begin with it is necessary for you to accept with deadly seriousness the fact that every last
iota of the costume's ingredients
must conform to the others and must be of an accepted style in order to be right.

This is American—it comes from the French and it is style. There are certain combinations that are right
for any one season and certain others
that are wrong. Also it is not always easy to know just which combinations, though they may be in perfectly good taste, may be branded by those who know in our age as bad.

HANDBAG OF BLACK FAILE WITH CHAIN AND CLASPS OF
OPALINE PRYSTAL—A LATE IM-PORTATION. HANDBAGGERS
OF OPALINE LINEN WITH HAND
ROLLED HEM.

The coat is blue wool crepe of
lightest texture, flared, too, as to
cape and skirt.
The hat is blue panamela caught
up in front with a pink pique chrysanthemum.

The bag is black faille silk with
pink crystal chain and clasp.

The beads are pink pearls, following the frock's neckline to a nicety.

The shoes are plain black kid
pumps with fairly high heels—best
for street wear this season, with this
sort of an ensemble.

The stockings are deep skin color of
what is termed "sheer service" weight.
The gloves are pinky beige in suede
—the simple pull-on variety.

So, we see the perfectly assembled
costume of the day, correct in every
detail.

DRESS OF BRIGHT NAVY
BLUE FLAT CREPE TRIMMED
WITH INSERTS OF PATOU PINK
HANDKERCHIEF LINEN CALLED OPALINE.

Other Correct Ensemble
Combinations

BLACK and white ensembles are accepted as thoroughly good form. The combinations are endless.

For instance: Black covert cloth
coat with silver fox trimming. Black flat crepe dress with white chiffon
trimming. Black patent leather bag,
with white crystal trimmings. Black patent leather shoes. Black straw
beret with gellera clip and grosgrain
bow, crystal beads. Very sheer russet
stockings and pull-on gloves of pinky
beige.

Another—Black and Opaline.
Black soft, dull finish, cloth cape.
Soft collar of the same fabric, made in a drapery jacket manner. Black crepe Elizabeth dress, skirt circular
or pleated. Opaline lingerie collar
and cuffs of narrow fluted lace edges
against stripes of hand fastened batista shoes, stockings, gloves, etc.,
following the general scheme as outlined above.

Still Another—Blue and Blue
Blue mannish material tailored coat (double breasted, flared model by Chanel is good). Print dress—blue black design. Scarf of sable or marten skins. Blue kid shoes, skin toned stockings, with gloves to match. Blue straw hat with narrow brim. Cut crystal necklace.

It is a new pink sponsored by Patou
—called opaline. This is a pink with a strong violet tinge and a little of
it goes a great way, which makes it ideal for trimming.

Generalizing Ensemble Lines
THE frock is blue flat crepe—gored
to a flare for the skirt, bolero
jacket and bell sleeves.

The coat is blue wool crepe of
lightest texture, flared, too, as to
cape and skirt.

The hat is blue panamela caught
up in front with a pink pique chrys-
anthemum.

The bag is black faille silk with
pink crystal chain and clasp.

The beads are pink pearls, follow-
ing the frock's neckline to a nicety.

The shoes are plain black kid
pumps with fairly high heels—best
for street wear this season, with this
sort of an ensemble.

The stockings are deep skin color of
what is termed "sheer service" weight.
The gloves are pinky beige in suede
—the simple pull-on variety.

So, we see the perfectly assembled
costume of the day, correct in every
detail.

Palestine

Moves On

While the political situation in the Holy Land remains very much
up in the air, chiefly by reason of the inordinate length of time taken
by the Inquiry Commission to go over and study the evidence collected last November and December, economically the country is moving ahead, once more. Several new Jewish colonies have actually been formed, and the experts in charge of colonization have given
out the statement that there is immediate room for 50,000 Jewish families on the land. This means that an equal number will be able to find a place in the cities. There would be room for many more, but
large sections of land in Palestine
are kept in an unproductive state
for the benefit of an occasional herd of black goats. If this land were turned into orange groves as has been done in the broad belt going north from Jaffa, profitable
work for many more thousands could be found. The rains have been abundant, the sun is up and everything points to a fine year for agriculture. There is so much to do that there is no need to keep up
the quarrel. There is plenty of land and opportunity for all, Arab and Jew alike. It was at a promiss-ing moment like this that the Hebrew King Solomon wrote this ode
to the peace that brooded on the hills: "For, lo, the winter is past,
the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is
come, and the voice of the turtle
is heard in our land."

Ludwig in Paris

"The German Republic is in no danger at all. I wish I could be as certain of the peace of Europe."
was the reply of Emil Ludwig, the celebrated biographer of Goethe, Lincoln and Napoleon, with whom
we spent a few moments during his recent visit to Paris. "You are not without some disquietude, then,
in so far as the peace of Europe is concerned?" Herr Ludwig lost his smile. He weighed his words carefully. "The generation which participated in the war is peaceful and pacifist," he replied. "But the younger generation is restless and embarrassed. It asks itself if things have been settled definitely and if there must not be another settlement. And this younger generation also asks itself if violence is not the only means to set the house in order. For Europe is in disorder, and the Versailles Treaty is the cause of it. . . . Divergence between races is not serious," he added a moment later. "But what aggravates these differences are the differences in the political systems
of the various countries. There lies the danger. One of the causes of the war was the antagonism between the old empires and the republics in 1914. To-day, the danger
is reappearing through the differences in established political systems in Europe." Herr Ludwig was asked if he had seen Mr. Brand while in Paris. He replied in the affirmative, adding: "Mr. Brand is one of the greatest guides of the new Europe." Asked what attracted him
in the life of Lincoln, he said:
"Lincoln is one of the heroes of democracy. In the present crisis
of democracy it is good sometimes to evoke the example of the pioneers."

The Spring Sailor

A new type of the old-fashioned
sailor hat is shown in a rough straw,
its crown shallow and its wide brim
undrapping. A narrow ribbon bands
the crown and ends at the back in a pin bow. So simple enough and un-military enough to please almost any one partial to the daytime tailored mode.

Now is the time for housewives to serve dainty chicken dinners, for rarely do they get an opportunity to buy tender, delicious fowl at such a phenomenally low price. In all the markets and
many of the chain stores unusually big shipments of chickens are being received daily
and the best fowl
can be purchased
as low as 38 cents
a pound.

Every cook has
her favorite ways
of cooking chick-
en. New Englanders prefer to roast
them; Southerners divide them, dip
them in flour and seasoning and fry
them in butter and cream; typically Middle Western is chicken fricassee
with dumplings. My favorite is a more exotic dish, I like to bring out
the delicate flavor of chicken by combining it with other foods, and this recipe is one which many of my friends have requested after dining
at my house.

CHICKEN ESPAGNOLE

1 chicken, 3 to 4 pounds
1 cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
Dash of paprika
8 strips of bacon
1 1/2 cups or 1 small can mushrooms
4 tomatoes, or 1 small can
1 cup boiling water
1 small onion
1/2 green pepper
1 pimiento

Wash the chicken thoroughly and divide into small pieces. Mix salt, pepper and cornmeal and roll the
sections of chicken in it until completely coated. Arrange in a flat baking dish and add tomatoes, mushrooms, onion (chopped) pimiento and green pepper. Place the strips of bacon across the top and put in a moderate oven. After it has baked for about twenty minutes, add the boiling water and continue cooking. If most of the liquid absorbs, add a little more hot water. Bake for forty-five minutes, or until very tender. Chicken cooked in this way
is delicious served in a ring of noodles
sprinkled with a little grated Parmesan cheese.

SYNOPSIS
Tom Allen, young plantation owner, is on his way, unescorted to a prison camp where he is to be detained, the Germans having seized the territory of the British East Africa Protectorate. Nearby a strange rite is being enacted. Dawn, a mystic girl, is being dedicated as a virgin bride of a pagan god, amid a weird pattern of dances by attendant girls. Tom has learned that she is as white as himself. Both are infatuated with one another. She, a slender, budding girl, man, before whom the natives stand in abject fear, expects to die into execution, this night, his sister designs on Dawn, who will be chained till morning.

INSTALLMENT ELEVEN
The thought invoked a strangled sob from her, a sob that Morda was quick to mark angrily. Her scowl throtted further involuntary protest in Dawn. The girls with out a backward glance at the chain, the goddess, vanished silently into the jungle blackness. The girls, still, blindfolded, clung to the cymbals. Morda began to chant again, the abominable "To Save a Thousand Souls."

Dawn, her arms drawn down about her by the chains, stood staring into the sky, unwilling to turn her eyes to the sights about her. Morda spoke no farewell, but took the pipe in the hand and together they followed the bridesmaids.

Alone I stand beneath the pale light, the mystic moonbeams, my couch the velvet night. With a start she realized the import of the words she had uttered. It was the formal invocation that she sang, the surrender to Morda. She gasped in alarm, and instinctively looked around quickly to ascertain if she had been overheard. Her eyes roved to where Shep stood watching her, but he was concealed by the jungle foliage. Suddenly she was startled by a cry that came from the side. She looked down with the girls of both Pigeon and himself Tom stumbled through the unfamiliar jungle. His mind was alive with concern. Though chiefly anxious for the safety of Pigeon, he was mindful, too, of his promise to Ernie, and of Dawn's plight. As time passed, he reflected, the condition of all things affecting him grew steadily worse.

"Pigeon! Pigeon!" he called hopefully, several times, but he was answered only by the noises of the jungle.

As he strode onward he became aware, with a twinge of guilt, that his calls, though addressed to Pigeon, really were intended for the ear of Dawn. The earlier music of the pipe was assurance that she was not far away. He told himself that if he had known where he would in no manner be guilty of violating his word to Ernie.

The pledge was uttered in genuine faith, neither bargained on Tom's being lost. Tom found it very easy to justify a visit to Dawn.

Coming from the trail, Tom was startled to see a faint speck of fire on the ground before him, a thin ribbon of smoke floating upward from it. Upon inspection it proved to be a cigarette stub. First thought was that it had been dropped by Pigeon, who was in the habit of smoking. But the Cockney, second thought reminded him, had been without cigarettes. Then who? Certainly none of the native girls.

Shep! He was following Dawn! This realization inflamed Tom to fury. Even now, he knew, Shep would be at the clearing with Dawn chained and defenseless. Flinging both kils from him, he broke into a run—on the trail now and unhampered by stumps and underbrush. He was grateful to Shep for having carelessly flung away the cigarette. It was both a warning and a beacon.

Bursting into the clearing where Dawn stood chained to all her love-liness, Tom was inexpressibly relieved to discover that he had caught Shep in her side. The breathless to speak at once he merely gazed at Dawn. She returned his gaze, startled.

"Why—why are you here?" she stammered.

"Dawn! Dawn!" he panted. "You're all right! Sun!"

"Yes, Tom. But why are you here?"

"Pigeon lost the trail. We were separated and I came on alone through the jungle. I heard the pipe and knew you were here. I followed the trail. They've chained you here, haven't they?"

"You must go at once," she cried, alarmed for him. "Oh, don't let them find you here. You must—"

"Incredulous, Tom broke in. 'And leave you here alone? I wouldn't dream of it.'"

"God! God!" Dawn beseeched him. "Not alone, never."

"I am now Thabu," Dawn explained, a warning in her words. "No one, not even you, may touch me."

"Dawn, come with me," Tom pleaded. "We're meant to be together. Look, I've found you in the deepest nook in the jungle, a place something guided me to even in the darkness. Can't you see? It's inescapable. It's a greater good than your wretched Malungu—that—"

TRUCK TO BE BOUGHT BY EL CERRITO

Recommendation of Street Commissioner Peter Larsen to the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night that the city purchase a truck for the street department was laid over for one week for the council to decide what size truck to purchase.

Specifications will probably be submitted next Monday night and bids ordered advertised to be received sometime this month.

City Attorney T. H. DeLap was instructed to find out what the status of the city was in regards to the office and pay of City Treasurer Cora J. M. Simonson who has been ill and unable to attend to her duties since last fall. Councilman Phil A. Lee stated the city was compelled to hire help for which the city treasurer is receiving a salary.

Request of Fire Commissioner Hans M. Nissen to hire a man for a week to clear the area from around the fire hydrants in the city was granted by the council.

Application of Charlotte Lynch for the approval of the map of a subdivision to be known as the Arlington Villa Sites was laid over for one week. Councilman Peter Larsen informed the council that he would not vote for the approval of the map unless sewers were constructed in the tract.

Plans and specifications for the streets and other improvements will be submitted next meeting night.

Councilman Phil A. Lee reported that the waterways in the city had been opened and the stagnant water sprayed with oil to kill the mosquitos.

Report of Edward Dinklespiel, census supervisor in this district, showed El Cerrito had a population of 3848 and Township No. 7 of 5269.

Applications by the Eagle Drum Corps to hold a dance on May 17 at Central hall and of the El Cerrito Methodist church to send flowers at the corner of San Pablo and Fairmont avenues on Memorial Day was granted by the council.

Is the Robot Fooling YOU?

The Paris correspondent of "VARIETY" reports: "The music-wise Continentals object violently to mechanical music (in the theatre)."

WHAT, then, if Europeans thus prove their "music-wisdom," are we North Americans supposed to buy that we are asked to accept mechanical music—and mechanical music only—in the theatre? Music-stupid, perhaps?

Well, at least 2,000,000 theatre patrons have rejected that characterization by joining the Music Defense League. They mean that they want Real Music, not Canined Music exclusively, in the theatre.

If you value the Art of Music, you too, should be numbered among the "music-wise." Just sign and mail the coupon at the left.

EL CERRITO TO MOVE CHEMICAL WAGON

Location of the chemical wagon will be at the Berkeley club instead of Mira Vista according to vote of the council of El Cerrito Monday night which by a vote of 3 to 2 gave Fire Chief O. A. Burnett permission to make the decision as to the location of the apparatus.

The matter was brought before the council by Councilman Ernest O'Brien who stated the chemical had been changed from Mira Vista to the Berkeley Country club without the council's knowledge. He stated it would serve the residents better if returned to Mira Vista as it was closer to the homes in that district.

Fire Commissioner Hans M. Nissen and Fire Chief Burnett, who were responsible for the change stated they had moved the chemical because it was capable of running down hill to Mira Vista but not up the hills. They also said that a man would be available to take the truck out night or day and would keep it in running condition which was not possible at the former location.

Nissen also said they were moving the chemical in the Berkeley Country Club Terrace tract to Shervin and Terrace Drives with also a man to operate it and the city would save $120 rental charges in the new location.

The motion of Ernest O'Brien that the chemical be returned to Mira Vista district was amended by Councilman Peter Larsen that the matter be left to the discretion of Fire Chief O. A. Burnett and Larsen's motion was adopted by the following vote, ayes, Councilmen Nissen, Larsen and Beck; noes, Councilmen O'Brien and Lee.

The McRacken store was entered through a rear window after bars guarding the window had been forcibly removed from the brick.

The combination of the safe was knocked off with a hammer. Only cash was taken from the store.

The safe is screened from the street by the office railing, and an intruder could remain invisible from outside by crouching near the floor.

The entrance to the Breuner store was discovered shortly after midnight by police making their rounds. It was believed the thief was frightened away by police before he could ransack the store.

Several suits of clothing were stolen from the McRacken store several months ago.

MERCHANTS TO MEET WITH COX

A conference will be held this week between a committee from the Richmond Merchants' Association and the Police Committee of the City Council and Chief of Police Dan Cox, to decide upon a course of action to curb depredations of burglars in Richmond.

This was announced yesterday by representatives of the Merchants' Association, following a series of thefts in local stores and homes during the past week.

Two methods may be employed to meet the need for greater protection, it was said—an increase of the night force of the local police department, and the hiring of an additional special policeman to patrol the down-town district after dark.

Members of the committee appointed by the Merchants association are Clark Barger, Ernest Marcus and Fred S. Newman. The city council police committee consists of the following members: V. A. Fenner, Walter Johnson and J. N. Hartnett.

Fire Razes 15 Tar Buildings

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 12.—UP—Fire and a series of explosions ravaged the Allied Tar and Chemical factory today, destroying 15 of the 21 small buildings of the concern. Damage was estimated at more than $500,000.

The blaze started when sparks from burning grass ignited a wooden storeroom for naphtha flakes and moth balls. The 35 employees barely had time to escape before the explosion of a 500 gallon tank containing a coal oil product.

Colleen Moore To Seek Divorce In Court Today

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—UP—Colleen Moore, film actress, was to appear in superior court tomorrow to seek a divorce from John E. McCormick, prominent studio executive.

Miss Moore, in her complaint filed about two weeks ago, alleged mental cruelty. She declared that McCormick once ordered her from their home a few days after she returned from a hospital.

McCormick, it was said, does not intend to contest the action.

Mother Of Ten Released On Liquor Charge

MONTESSANO, Wash., May 12.—UP—Justice Arthur M. Furnit today released Mrs. Joe Botorac, 47, mother of ten living children, after she spent three days in jail with her 3-month old baby, Dick, in lieu of payment of a $250 fine and costs for liquor possession.

Justice Furnit, who sentenced the woman, released her after she furnished a $500 appeal bond, signed by Mike Damaria, shingle mill owner and John Lonac.

Mrs. Botorac has several grandchildren in addition to her own. Her husband is said to be in California taking Hot Springs treatments for injuries received in a mill accident.

Frances Starr Wins Divorce

RENO, Nev., May 12.—UP—A divorce decree was issued today to Frances Starr Coffin, wife of William Haskell Coffin, well known legislator.

Frances Starr is a famous emotional actress of the legitimate stage.

She charged Coffin with non-support, in her divorce complaint.

The couple were married in New York in 1920.

Pantages To Know Fate Of Plea Next Week

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—UP—Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, will learn within a few weeks the attitude of the state supreme court on his plea for release from the Los Angeles county jail on bail pending an appeal from conviction on charges of attacking Eunice Pringle, 17 year old dancer.

He was assured today that there will not be any prolonged delay in receiving an opinion because Presiding Justice John T. Nourse of the state court of appeal was appointed here to fill temporarily a vacancy on the supreme court caused by the illness of Justice William H. Waste.

The supreme court became deadlocked, three to three, when Justice John F. Tyler, who had been appointed to take the place of Justice Waste, deemed himself disqualified from giving an opinion of the Pantages case.

Appointment of Justice Nourse removes the necessity of re-submitting the case on the Los Angeles calendar, which would have required considerable time.

President's Tour Excites Inquiry At Washington

WASHINGTON, May 12.—UP—President Hoover's tour of the west this summer already has created a perplexing situation at the White House.

The question the president must decide is whether or not to do something entirely alien to his own inclinations—carry his cause to the public through a series of personal appeals.

Hoover made it known today that he has been vexed at reports that he would attempt to capitalize the trip politically. He asked that it be understood that he was going to the west because he had been invited and because of a desire for rest and relaxation after a year or more of hard work in Washington.

At the same time it was not denied that a few speeches might be made in the larger cities along the way.

It is entirely too early to decide where he will make his speeches, friends of the president said.

New Battles With Moro Bandits Loom

MANILA, P. I., May 12.—UP—Sultan Mamur, Moro bandit chieftain known to the American colony as 'the Al Capone of the Islands' was reported today to be traveling with a large force of outlaws to join bands of Moros already entrenched in forts in the mountains.

In 'cortas' or native forts, a large force of Moros under Bunsu, another leader, are already awaiting their leader, and pitched battles between the outlaw bands and the native constabulary are anticipated.

General Nathorst, commander of the native troops, has sworn to rid the Islands once and for all of the menace of the Moros, who have been responsible for serious depredations and loss of life in recent months.

Fifty lives, including those of five constables, were lost last week, when hostilities arose near Darsalan, when Moros deliberately ambushed a native detachment that was seeking them.

father, John Neldrick, Charles Neldrick, 20, of Phoenix avenue was yesterday sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail by Police Judge C. A. Odell.

SEE RICHMOND FIRST!

For a short but interesting travel tour, visit the inner harbor of Richmond.

Here a year and a half ago was an expanse of undeveloped filled land which had just been reclaimed from mud flats.

First the piles of the Parr-Richmond terminal went down, and upon these was built the $500,000 terminal which has been doing a rushing business since last October.

Then came the location of the Filice and Perelli cannery, ground for which was broken last fall. It is this fine new structure which every resident of Richmond should see. It is an imposing plant standing between Tenth and Fourteenth street just back of the Parr-Richmond terminal. It is not finished, but the main structure is in place, and visitors will be impressed by the size and appearance of the building.

It is still more impressive when we recall the words of G. A. Filice at the recent Chamber of Commerce banquet, to the effect that this is but the start of the company's operations in Richmond and that in three or four years the space will probably be doubled.

At the end of Tenth street, a short distance beyond the new cannery, is the large acreage where construction will soon begin on the Ford assembling plant.

In short, the inner harbor is being transformed from mudflats to a zone of great activity.

THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING.

Such developments are made possible by community cooperation in which the Chamber of Commerce is a vital element.
